What This Job Is Really Like

We want applicants to know what to expect before applying so read carefully:

- The truck can get warm, especially during summer events
- You will spend a lot of time standing and moving
- Busy events can become very fast-paced
- You may serve customers continuously for long stretches
- You will need to stay organized and friendly even when there is a line
- The job involves loading, stocking, cleaning, setup, and breakdown in addition to serving customers
- Events and locations change, so every shift is not exactly the same

If you prefer a slow-paced job, sitting for much of your shift, or working in a climate-controlled environment all day, this probably will not be a good fit.

Previous food service, retail, food truck, catering, delivery, or customer-service experience is helpful, but not mandatory.

Schedule

This is a part-time position, generally around 20 hours per week.

Most shifts include afternoons, evenings, and weekends. Hours and locations vary depending on scheduled stops, catering jobs, festivals, community events, and seasonal demand.

- Like staying busy
- Don't mind heat or being on your feet
- Can stay calm and organized during a rush
- Like driving and changing locations
